Mobility

To ensure that a modern enterprise retains its competitive edge is widely recognised that it is vital to harness a more flexible and mobile workforce. Indeed Corporate Mobility is an essential component in improving responsiveness to client needs and new business opportunities.

Ensuring that our employees are working productively while mobile is equally problematic and creates difficulties for traditional remote access solutions over universal access and security.

Studies conducted by the DTI illustrate that personal productivity improvements in greater flexible working methodologies can be as much as 40%. OE Office everywhere is the key that can unlock the additional value locked inside a static workforce and ensures that a business can achieve its strategic goals.

Applications

To harness greater productivity and improve responsiveness it essential that employees access the key business applications that support our business strategies. Access to information and the need to work collaboratively and flexibly with colleagues and partners alike, demands real time solutions that work to support the goals of the business.

Enterprise

The challenges of managing connectivity, to laptops, PDA's, across the Internet or wireless networks while maintaining a secure environment would be off putting for most business and typically hinders the value of the benefits that business critical applications such as ERP or CRM can provide.

Oe Office everywhere is designed to be the clientless solution, managed within a secure environment, which means IT departments, can focus on maintaining core systems.

Security

Security is a major consideration for traditional remote access solutions over universal access and security. Support for additional security can be costly and resource intensive making it seem that mobility is a burden on the business rather than a benefit.

OE Office everywhere is a managed solution to the remote access requirement that underpins Corporate Mobility. Providing this secure and flexible service means that IT resources can concentrate on the delivery of core services.
